

Audio loops are available at a selection of polling places to assist electors with a hearing impairment. The hearing or listening aid will need to be switched to 'T' to use the audio loop. Polling places with audio loops are advertised with the symbol of access for hearing loss.

All polling places have hand-held magnifying sheets, which are available upon request, to enlarge the text on the ballot papers. A limited number of polling places also have video magnifiers available.

A Vote Assist system will be available at a small number of polling places. This system is designed to assist an elector who is blind or has a vision impairment to vote using headphones and a keypad connected to a computer. For more information about Vote Assist, contact the WAEC on 13 63 06.

Polling Place Locations

Polling places with Vote Assist, drive-in polling, video magnifiers, wheelchair access or audio loops will be advertised on the WAEC website before the election, and in "The West Australian" newspaper on the day of the election.

Alternate Format Information

If information in alternate formats is required, please contact the WAEC on 13 63 06.

Translated Information

Information on voting in languages other than English is available on the WAEC website. Multilingual Guides are available in every polling place, and provide information in selected languages on how to complete the ballot papers.

Assistance for Electors at a State Election

The Western Australian Electoral Commission (WAEC) provides a range of services to assist electors to vote at a State Election.

Enrolment

All eligible citizens must be enrolled to vote.

To enrol to vote, or update any of your enrolment details, electors need to complete an enrolment form, which is available from the WAEC website, Post Offices, any Electoral Commission office, or by calling the WAEC on 13 63 06.

If an elector does not understand the significance and process of voting or cannot vote due to a physical incapacity, and a medical practitioner confirms this in writing, then the elector is not required to be enrolled to vote in State Elections. The medical practitioner needs to complete an Objection to Electoral Enrolment Medical Certificate form. For more information or to obtain a form please call 13 63 06.

Early Voting

If an elector is seriously ill or infirm, has a permanent disability, or is caring for such an elector, they can apply for ballot papers to be posted to them before the day of the State Election. Application forms are available at Post Offices, the WAEC website or by contacting the WAEC on 13 63 06.

Alternatively, an elector can apply to be registered as a general early voter. Following registration, ballot papers are automatically posted to the elector's address at every election.

Another option is to go to an early voting location, before the day of the election, and ask to vote. Early voting locations are advertised on the WAEC website before each election.

For more information about eligibility for a postal vote, general early vote or voting early in person, please contact the WAEC on 13 63 06 or visit the WAEC website.

Mobile Polling

Mobile polling teams visit many hospitals and specific institutions in the days before an election to enable temporary and permanent residents and patients to vote.

Mobile polling locations are advertised on the WAEC website and in "The West Australian" newspaper. The date and time that mobile polling will take place will also be publicised at each location.

Drive-In Polling Places

Drive-in polling places are provided at selected locations in the metropolitan area for use by electors with limited mobility. If an elector has limited mobility, they can stay in their car and complete their ballot papers, with assistance from Polling Place Officials or another person if required.

Services at the Polling Place

Reserved parking bays that enable easier access for electors with limited mobility are available at most polling places.

Polling places that can be accessed by people using wheelchairs are advertised with the symbol of access. A small number of polling places have a temporary ramp installed to enable wheelchair access on the day of the election.

If an elector is unable to enter a polling place due to a disability or limited mobility, upon request, a Polling Official can take the ballot papers to the elector (close to the polling place) for them to complete. The Polling Official, or another person, can also provide the elector with assistance to complete the ballot papers if required.

Desktop voting screens are available at every polling place. These voting screens are at a height that can be used by a person using a wheelchair. The desktop voting screens also enable electors to vote sitting down if required.
